

Word from the Brothers: Communion

There's something real about the communication between this world and the world to come, a kind of communion between saints and souls and sinners that spans the gulf of time. It is not just we who are praying, but we are being prayed for by a great cloud of heroic witnesses, some of whom, I believe, are attracted to us, who have our name and have our number and who remember us. It's a wonderful thing to be remembered. I think we are.

The family of the late Whiteman Harris wish to express gratitude to everyone for their kindness at this time. Thanks to those who visited Whiteman while he was in the hospital and at home. Special thanks to Rev. Charles for his homily, to Patti for the music, also the ladies for the lovely reception and finally to all who attended the celebration of Whiteman's life. Thank you to those who donated to the Church and the Red Cross. Your love and kindness meant so much to all of us. God Bless. Muriel, Dawn, Lori-Anne and families.

Reflection - Saint Margaret

There are two ways to be charitable: the "clean way" and the "messy way." The "clean way" is to give money or clothing to organizations that serve the poor. The "messy way" is dirtying your own hands in personal service to the poor. Margaret's outstanding virtue was her love of the poor. Although very generous with material gifts, Margaret also visited the sick and nursed them with her own hands. She and her husband served orphans and the poor on their knees during Advent and Lent. Like Christ, she was charitable the "messy way."
